Sorting

A sorting algorithm is a method for arranging elements in a collection such as an array or vector in a specific order, typically ascending or descending.

Bubble sort

Bubble sort is the simplest algorithm that repeatedly swaps adjacent elements if they are in the wrong order. This algorithm is not suitable for large data sets as its average and worst-case time complexity are high.